"The Dream Sequence Always Rings Twice." Easily the best episode of Moonlighting, and one of my favorite episodes of ANY TV show.

It was the first time I ever heard "I Told Ya' I Love Ya' Now Get Out."

Thanks for posting this, Crainbebo! Two comments on animated programming:

1. The program at 7 AM on Channel 62 is M.A.S.K., not The Mask (the spinoff of the Jim Carrey movie that came along years later).

2. Do you know which station ran Centurions in Kansas City?

Some comments about KQTV the 2nd (more on the 1st here:

<http://www.uhftelevision.com/articles.html>

St. Joseph's channel 2 has an odd existence being in the shadow of KC. Started out CBS as KFEQ-TV in 1953, switched to ABC in 1967, took on the KQTV calls in 1969 when KFEQ 680 and KFEQ-TV were sold to different owners.

Why didn't KQTV become the NBC affiliate for KC in the late 80s after WDAF defected to FOX? Probably the same reason that KQTV didn't ever move into the KC market: Kansas City International Airport. No big towers were possible anywhere near there, I suspect. And, by the 80s, I wonder if a channel 2 signal with all of its difficulties being viewed with rabbit ear sets might have been at a disadvantage to UHF signals.

KQTV did try to move into the Topeka market in the early 80s with a proposed 2000 foot tower about 25 miles SW near Atchinson KS. Problem was that it created a white area on the NE side of the existing KQTV service area of about 10,000 people, while the service gains to Topeka and other areas in Kansas didn't result in a second or third TV service. All the networks were already there, so KQTV's proposal was denied. Had KQTV made their move in the 60s before all the UHF's in Topeka came about, the outcome might have been different.

Re: Retro: New York City Sat, Feb 12, 1977

A few things:

- TV Guide was in error when claiming that WOR's sign-on newscast was in B&W; I vividly remember seeing their slides-only news in color. From what I recall, Russ Dunbar was doing the sign-on news on weekdays in those days, and Phil Tonken did such newscasts at least on Saturdays.

- There was an irony to WOR running the by-then public TV Firing Line at this point, as it was at Channel 9 that the show was first launched in 1966, and there it remained until host William F. Buckley moved it to public TV (and its studio base elsewhere) in 1971.

- This was from a time when their Fright Night was temporarily off the air.

WTNH-ABC-8 - New Haven

7:00 AM - Little Rascals (animated)

The Little Rascals (the 1930's episodes) weren't animated. Not until 1983 when ABC decided to do an animated series of The Little Rascals and before in 1981 when NBC aired an animated Christmas special of The Little Rascals were they animated.

In which case, either Channel 8 or TVG bunged the listing up...given that TVG claimed WOR's news aired in B&W, could very well be the latter less than a year later Estaban Dejesus would get His ass kicked by Roberto Duran and lose the WBA Lightweight Championship.

Re: Retro: New York City Sat, Feb 12, 1977

Blansky's Beauties, one of the worst tv shows ever produced! :

And are those translator channels?

Yes. For many years, all the major NYC stations had supplemental UHF translators to deal with multi-path issues in mid-town Manhattan. I believe I recall reading that after 9/11, WPIX reactivated theirs (or at least received permission to do so) for a brief time during those early post-attack days when the WTC stations were all improvising any way possible to restore OTA service to at least some of their coverage area.

Which leads to this question: When did the W60AI translator channel (Channel 60) come into effect for Channel 68?

Wikipedia claims 1977 as s/on date (maybe later in the year after this schedule was published). FCC file on them seems to only go back to 1980 or so.

So it was maybe later in 1977 that W60AI first kicked in. The translator was already in place ("with a circular polarized antenna located atop 2 World Trade Center, New York City") by the time and/or shortly after Channel 68's calls were changed to WTVG, per this sign-on:

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=RzM9iyaPd9U>

And later on, after 68's call-letter change to WWHT in 1979, was on this clip (at 2:18 - 3:14):

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=Gjy1jlz3kKk>

- There was an irony to WOR running the by-then public TV Firing Line at this point, as it was at Channel 9 that the show was first launched in 1966, and there it remained until host William F. Buckley moved it to public TV (and its studio base elsewhere) in 1971.

Do you happen to know if these were first-run episodes or reruns?

If this is of help . . . there were two episodes dealing with gun control. One was taped in 1980. The one aired here was probably rerun from PBS, but was a relatively new episode, having been taped on Jan. 10, 1977. The guests are on the page linked below:

<http://hoohila.stanford.edu/firingli...?programID=722>

In short, this was within the "first-run" group and not reruns of his 1966-71 shows.

That was my take, wbbst, though I'm not sure if I ever saw an episode of this program on WOR myself (PBS/WNET is a totally different matter).

Thanks!

Did TVG did run ads of WWWF action on ch.9 to get people to watch at midnight.

It would not have been TV Guide's decision. The ad would have to be purchased by either WOR-TV or by the program producers. Given that WOR-TV would have still been owned by RKO General in 1977, I think the odds were heavily against such an ad appearing, as RKO tended to run ads only for airings of movies.

Actually YOU BOTH are sort of right. I was from Northern NJ and we got the NYC edition of TV Guide in our area even though we could not get Hartford stations. Some stores also offered the Philadelphia Edition B which had Philadelphia and NYC VHF stations. There was also an edition offered near Philadelphia that only had Philadelphia stations. The two editions eventually merged. Anyhow the NYC edition had tons of NYC minority watched and secondary PBS stations included along with our well known 7 VHF stations 2, 4, 5, 7, 9, 11, and 13. In our area with Cable we only got the major NYC VHF stations and Philadelphia major players back then. With a good roof antenna MAYBE you could get NYC UHF stations but few if any bothered trying. Anyhow did have people I know that lived an hour out of Hartford.

I did notice that the TV Guide listed Little Rascals as a cartoon but this was a mistake on the TV Guide's part. WTNH actually only showed that theatrical Little Rascals films from King World made by Hal Roach studios from 1929-38 from Interstate TV prints and later King World White prints. I do not believe a cartoon rascals show was even made till the early 80's plus their 30 second 1979 PSA's that were animated. So Channel 8 did carry the theatricals not a cartoon.....Also they did not carry the MGM ones from 38-44 from what I can gather.

"They Died with their Boots On." [1941] George Armstrong Custer (Errol Flynn) is a rebellious but ambitious soldier, eager to join the Civil War. During the war, Custer has numerous successes to his credit, even though he disobeys orders. After the war concludes, he marries Libby Bacon (Olivia de Havilland) and is assigned to the Dakota Territory. Custer negotiates honestly with the Sioux on land, but due to corruption from others, a battle with Sitting Bull's forces occurs at Little Big Horn.

Having grown up in this area, this listing brings back a lot of memories. Especially the Mr. Moto movie (though I remember them mostly on Saturday afternoons). They were part of a package with Charlie Chan and Basil Rathborne-era Sherlock Holmes. Anyone else see these movies in their areas? Some other thoughts...

--A lot of programs that I'd assume were already in mothballs, from "This Is The Life" to "Police Story".

--I'm not sure which is odder, that the forgettable "Matt Houston" was syndicated or that they aired it at 9:30am Sunday.

--Lawrence Welk already in PBS reruns? When did the public TV reruns start?

You grew up in Yakima, or Tri-Cities? I get all of my microfilm copies at the Downtown Yakima Library. They have Yakima Herald going back to about 1895 or so, up to September 2014. Yes, you would think 2014 would all be archived ONLINE...but there's still film copies.

I notice that some of the later 1990s YH-R's do not have any of the Sunday TV inserts on the film. Proof? I looked at the microfilm reel from January 1997. No Sunday inserts at all.

I went there today and got two more microfilm listings, 1983 and 1992. The 1983 listing has cable lineups for all of the Yakima Valley cable systems - McCaw and Cox. Little would you know, 30+ years later it's ALL Charter!

I should post those cable lineups.

-crainbebo

I grew up in a small town 20 miles south of Yakima, so we only got the Yakima stations. I've occasionally looked up the microfilm too, and noticed the TV inserts only started around 1970 (before then they'd just print the week's listings in the main section of the paper). There's a good reason why; Yakima didn't get a third commercial station until that year.

Ah, either Toppenish or Zillah! I have relatives in Wapato, and we visit Legends Casino about twice a year for the buffet/dinners. I spend more time listening to the variety music format of KYNR-1490 Toppenish than I do with the local FM stations!

I take it all of these stations were on cable in Yakima at the time

I believe some were, and some weren't. Some were on Selah's cable, and some were on Ellensburg's cable. KOMO, KING, KIRO can still be seen on Charter in Ellensburg, WA, with the Yakima stations. KSTW was all over WA and parts of BC.

-crainbebo

I take it all of these stations were on cable in Yakima at the time

In my area in 1998, the cable system had none of the Western Washington stations except KSTW. (I know for sure they all were on Ellensburg's cable). We also didn't have CHEK; we did have the CBC, but it wasn't CBUT--it was CBC North, the Yukon/NWT feed of the network. On the plus side we had WWOR while Yakima didn't.

Odd! I thought CBUT-2 Vancouver was the default station in WA - the CBUT feed is still carried on most Western WA cable systems. CBC North is a bit of a surprise. Was there any way to tell? Different test pattern after signing off I suppose? Were you also able to get the local CBC News broadcast from CBC North (NWT/YT) and the broadcast in the Inuktitut language?

I suspect you had WWOR EMI (post SyndEx) which was kind of a like a "WGN America" - mostly different programming from NYC WWOR, and no UPN simulcast unlike WGN in WB's first few years. Sometimes the Lower Valley cable got other channels than Yakima itself. A LONG time ago, Nickelodeon was carried in Selah on ch 2, but not at all in Yakima (this was during the Livewire, Pinwheel, You Can't Do That on Television days of the 80s).

-crainbebo

Oh it was instantly obvious it was CBC North: all weather was from the Arctic region, announcements and the little news I did see were in some Inuit language, plus the station was on Mountain Time. As far as WWOR, I always assumed it was the NYC feed; all the commercials were NYC-based (I finally got all the jokes about Crazy Eddie and Carvel from "SNL"), and Mets games were on and not blacked out. I moved from the area in 1992, so maybe the EMI feed took over after then.

WWOR EMI Service went on the air around 1990 after SyndEx went into effect. Commercials were mostly national direct-response, PSAs or WWOR EMI promos I believe. They blotted out UPN even though WGN Superstation carried the first few years of The WB.

I should check the weekday listings next week at the downtown library, and find "CBC". Yakima Herald did weekday daytime in a separate area, for M-F. Each evening/overnight had its own listing. CBC North has "Igalaaq", an Inuktitut news broadcast weekdays, and a Cree language newsmagazine aired each week called "Maamuitau". CBC North was on the Anik satellites, in the clear, for YEARS, until around 2000. I'm sure Danderson used that feed for Hockey Night in Canada broadcasts each Saturday night in season.

After looking at more microfilm today (and I have more listings, 1989 1991 1993 1995 to post) I saw only "News" listed for CBC at 6PM and 11PM. No Inuit language programming was listed. It may have been the "Northbeat" program in English. Inuit news may have been included in the broadcast but it was definitely not listed in the YHR listings.

installLSC: As of late 1986, the only cable system to have CBC North was McCaw Cable in Mid-Valley (Wapato, Toppenish, Zillah area) on channel 6. WWOR was also carried on channel 3, and not carried in Yakima or Ellensburg. The SAME system also offered Discovery Channel in the very early days on channel 19 - the only system at the time to carry it.

There was also a 12-channel system called "Chinook Cable" listed. Was that a cable provider for the Nile/Cliffdell area? They carried KCPQ 13 when no other provider had it.

Ding Dong School did run on NBC up until the end of 1956. It's a good bet it was syndicated. Not surprised about a 90-minute block of Popeye cartoons...KCOP in Los Angeles had a 90-minute block of Felix the Cat cartoons (mixed in with other cartoons--not sure which since it's been over 50 years since I saw it).

A few fading recollections from an old geezer that was close to his 6th birthday on the date indicated. I lived in Bloomington IN at the time.

Channel 4

Ruffles' Party was a local kids show, sponsored by Chesty potato chips, who owned the Ruffles brand name at the time. Ruffles the Clown was similar to Bozo in that each market had its own Ruffles, but it was strictly a midwestern and southern franchise, IIRC, not national.

Somewhere on the schedule, WTTV sportscaster Chuck Marlowe was involved in a kids show at the time. Could that have been Chatter 'n Bugs? I really don't remember that show.

The Popeye show, IIRC, was an hour, not 90 minutes. In 1961 it starred Happy Herb (Herb Isaacs), and if you sent your picture in to the station, he'd put it on his wall. I forget what came on at 5:30, but I was probably eating dinner then anyway.

The WTTV-produced kids shows also aired on then-sister station WFAM-TV 18 Lafayette and, beginning in 1962, flea-powered independent WTAF-TV 31 in Marion, which was not owned by Sarkes Tarzian.

Ding Dong School was a rerun from the 1950s. In my house, we were required to watch it, because my grandmother was a kindergarten teacher in Gary, and knew Frances Horwich professionally.

Indiana University programs were among the few shows still being produced in Bloomington. The station had moved most of its operations to Indy in the mid '50s, while it was still an NBC affiliate.

Channel 6

Channel 6 was WFBM-TV, not WFRM.

The Three Stooges show was either hosted by Hoosier Hank (Hank Beidenger) or Harlow Hickenlooper (Hal Fryar) on this date. IIRC, this was about when the changeover occurred.

I didn't remember the daily Indy 500 show being on any station other than Channel 13.

Channel 8

WISH-TV didn't run a whole lot of programming other than local news and CBS network fare in those days. They did have Selwin on Saturday nights, a horror host that was popular, but not anywhere near as much as the later Sammy Terry on WTTV.

Channel 13

WLW-I was a sister station to the Crosley/ABCO stations in Ohio, but all of them were NBC. Channel 13 became the first home of David Letterman by the end of the decade.

KIndergarten College was a very well done educational show aimed at pre-schoolers (obviously). It remained on Channel 13 until the market got PBS and Sesame Street became popular. WLWI also aired Sesame Street during its first season.

What other channels were in that Indiana edition of TVG at that time? (e.g., Lafayette & Terre Haute stations, maybe even WCIA-3 Champaign, IL)?

In 1961, the "Indiana Edition" included the following:

Bloomington/Indianapolis: WTTV 4 (Ind.), WFBM-TV 6 (NBC), WISH-TV 8 (CBS), and WLW-I 13 (ABC)

Ft. Wayne: WANE-TV 15 (CBS), WPTA 21 (ABC), and WKJG-TV 33 (NBC)

Lafayette: WFAM-TV 18 (CBS)

Muncie: WLBC-TV 49 (NBC, ABC)

Terre Haute: WTHI-TV 10 (CBS, ABC, NBC)

Champaign: WCIA-TV 3 (CBS)

Although they were within the market area, WCHU 33 (NBC) Champaign and satellite WICD 24 Danville (both semi-satellites of WICS 20 Springfield) were not listed. Both were flea-powered stations that barely covered their respective cities of license, and had little to no coverage into Indiana. They would be shut down in 1967 and replaced by WICD 15 Champaign with a much larger transmitter and antenna.

A good reference on Indianapolis TV in the early '60s is here:

Crosley also owned WLW-A in Atlanta (channel 11) which then was ABC. Today it's NBC's WXIA (owned Tegna).

The Crosley / AVCO WLW-A Atlanta mention brings into play that 1961 was a time of uncertainty for WLW-I Indianapolis. Long standing legal wrangling had resulted in a 1961 FCC decision that ownership of WLW-I should transfer to Fairbanks Broadcasting, owner of Indpls radio station WIBC. Crosley appealed and a year later finalized a deal with Fairbanks to swap ownership of WLW-I and WLW-A.

Yes, the ownership flap was settled in 1962. But WLW-I was still the red-headed stepchild of the Crosley group, and would remain a 3rd-rate operation (by their own admission!) until the station was sold to Dispatch in the late '70s and became WTHR.

WLW-I's signal was so bad that ABC's coverage of JFK's assassination also aired on WTTV, the previous ABC affiliate, in order for the network to be seen on the south side of the market. Channel 13 was all but unviewable in Bloomington and Columbus much of the time. IIRC, WTTV maintained a secondary affiliation with ABC after they lost the primary affiliation in '57, but I don't recall them airing any ABC programming other than this.

Other questions and tidbits.

WFBM: Wasn't Larry Vincent as "Captain Starr" also a one time host of Three Stooges on WFBM? Or was "Starr" just a sidekick, much the same as cowboy singer Curley Myers? Also noticed that WFBM was not yet airing "Today in Indiana" prior to NBC's Today Show. "Today in Indiana" was hosted by farm director Harry Martin and targetted a rural audience with farm news, Gospel quartet singing (including Martin's own group), and "Quacky" the duck -- a real life duck from Martin's New Palestine farm that obnoxiously quacked along from a small pen near Martin's anchor desk.

Captain Starr may have preceded Hoosier Hank, so he would have been before my time.

WISH: Debbie Drake was a produced from the WISH Riddick Building studios. For a time, WISH was home to Cowboy Clyde who did wrap-arounds to cartoons for the kids. Gene Alisson did local wrap-arounds to the afternoon movie. And a local Pastor, Russ Blowers hosted "The Chapel Door." WISH expanded it's local programming by the early 70s, including a Saturday morning kid show called "Clowning Around" and a 9 am weekday local talk show hosted by one time ABC news Capitol Hill reporter Wally Bruner. Bruner also hosted a syndicated home repair show based at WISH called "Wally's Workshop." Bruner was replaced on the morning talker by Janet Langhart. Langhart eventually moved to Boston television and is married to one time Defense Secretary William Cohen.

I remember the Debbie Drake show, but I didn't know that it was produced at Channel 8. I thought it was syndicated from NY or LA. Cowboy Clyde doesn't ring a bell -- was he already gone by '61? I remember Wally Bruner later in the '60s, but I was too young to watch him at this time.

WTTV: Didn't Chuck Marlowe play the Ruffles the Clown character? The 60s were a great time for local kids programming at WTTV. Names like Happy Herb, Janie, Cowboy Bob. Arguably the best was a ventriloquist named John B and his dummy Clem who hosted Lunchtime Theater.

Upon further review, Marlowe was Ruffles the Clown's sidekick. He also played Kedso the Clown on another show, sponsored by Keds sneakers. All this between gigs announcing wrestling and IU & Purdue basketball. Herb Isaacs also called basketball games for a time.

Independent stations had to improvise and their personnel had to do double- and triple-duty in the '50s and '60s. Not just (then) small-market KPHO Phoenix or mid-market WTTV, but even "behemoth" WGN-TV Chicago. WGN's Jack Brickhouse did news and political reporting as well as sports, and Ray Rayner handled several kids shows on the same day, plus weather. Chuck Marlowe was that multi-talented guy at WTTV.

Some parts of far western Indiana (maybe even in the Terre Haute area) might have also been able to receive ETV/NET (now PBS) outlet WILL-12 Urbana, IL--which signed on in 1955 but is not listed in this Indiana TVG edition.

And not too long after this edition was published, WCIA would face a third threat in its then 7 1/2-year history to its VHF channel 3 position, in favor of de-intermixing the Champaign side of the Springfield/Decatur/Champaign market into all-UHF on both sides, with the exception of the forementioned WILL (which was also considered for a channel move from 12 to 3 if WCIA was forced to UHF). If this had occurred, most likely the Champaign/Danville and Springfield/Decatur sides of the market might have been split into two now +100 markets a la Peoria/Bloomington [which in those moves lost a channel 8 allocation to the Quad Cities, which was the eventual WQAD-8 Moline; similar action forced channel 2's allocation out of Springfield and into both St. Louis (KTVI) and Terre Haute (WTWO)].

Great article from a GREAT Central Illinois TV history page created by a WICD-Champaign weatherman (Doug Quick) concerning the first 10 years of WCIA's history and all the threats the station faced to its channel 3 position in its early years:

I'm confused about the listings for Channel 3 Champaign and Channel 10 Terre Haute, in this TV Guide. I always thought that stations in the Central Time Zone ran almost all their shows at the same time as Eastern Time Zone stations, except for something like the "Today Show" which runs at 7am local time, regardless of time zone. In this TV Guide, 3 and 10 do the opposite. They ran the first two shows of the day (CBS News with Richard C. Hottelet and Captain Kangaroo) at the same time as the other CBS affiliates. But the rest of the schedule, they both were an hour ahead, for daytime and prime time shows.

So as soon as Captain Kangaroo is over, they go right to "I Love Lucy." The other CBS stations get an hour to run whatever they want, local or syndicated, before the daytime CBS schedule takes over. 3 and 10 do their late news at 10pm E.T. while everyone else in this TV Guide do their late news at 11pm. So I'm confused. If Champaign and Terre Haute are in the Central Time Zone, why are these local stations in effect TWO hours ahead of where they should be? If they are doing their late news at 10pm Eastern Time, that must mean they are doing their late news at 9pm Central Time.

Unless TV Guide is correcting for the time zone difference? They figured readers in Illinois and far Western Indiana, where Terre Haute is, want their listings in their local time? So they show 3 and 10 programs in local time, even though anyone with a good antenna pulling in stations from the Eastern Time Zone will be all confused? Maybe 3 and 10 ARE running most daytime and evening shows at the same time as the Eastern Time Zone stations?

By the way, 10 WTHI is listed as being a CBS, ABC and NBC affiliate, although a quick glance doesn't show anything other than CBS programs.

As for "Fast Time" and "Slow Time," the Indianapolis, Fort Wayne, Muncie and Lafayette stations all seem to be on Eastern Time, but Channel 3 Champaign and 10 Terre Haute ran a lot of their shows an hour ahead of the other CBS affiliates in this TV Guide, so I assume they were both in the Central Time Zone.

But I always thought that stations in the Central Time Zone ran almost all their shows at the same time as Eastern Time Zone stations, except for something like the "Today Show." The other CBS stations get an hour to run whatever they want before the daytime CBS schedule takes over.

Indianapolis stations ran their network fare on a one-hour tape delay in the summer to keep them on the Eastern schedule, even though they were on Central Daylight Time during the summer, as was the rest of the state other than the Cincinnati and Louisville suburbs.

But in the early '60s, some counties in Indiana used Eastern time and some used Central. Also, some used DST and some did not. One notable case was Santa Claus IN, where one half of the town observed DST and the other half didn't. It was all very confusing, so TV Guide listed "slow time" in parentheses.

Things settled down after 1967, with only a few county adjustments either way. All of Indiana save for "The Region," Evansville, Cincinnati, and Louisville areas did not observe DST. NW and SW Indiana were on Central time with DST, and suburban Cincinnati and Louisville were on Eastern time with DST. IIRC it was only about 10 years ago when all of Indiana started observing DST.

After 1968, the real meaning of "slow time" was discovered: It was found that people in the counties that observed "slow time" took an hour and a half to watch 60 Minutes.

By the way, 10 is listed as being a CBS, ABC and NBC affiliate, although a quick glance doesn't show anything other than CBS programs.

Before 1973, when Terre Haute got its first full-time ABC affiliate on Channel 38, that network was fill-in on WTHI-TV 10, and later was split between it and WTWO 2 when it went on the air in 1965. WTHI only rarely aired NBC shows, and IIRC didn't join that network until WTTV lost the NBC affiliation in 1956.

WTTV, with its transmitter in Cloverdale, about halfway between Indy and TH, from 1954-57, was the de facto NBC affiliate for Terre Haute. I don't have any schedules handy, but I'm guessing that WTHI dropped ABC during the 1956-57 season and aired more NBC shows while WTTV was the ABC affiliate.

WTTV moved to Trafalgar right about the time they lost ABC to WLW-I in October 1957. They were still incapable of covering the northern "money" end of the market from Trafalgar, and that's why they bought WWKI Channel 29 Kokomo in the '80s and made it their satellite. If they weren't a two-channel operation, I doubt if CBS would have affiliated with them.

Sunday, 25 minutes, a political talk, then a half-hour of "wire services". Tuesday and Thursday, ten minutes; Wednesday, 45; Monday, Friday, and Saturday, nothing?

Either WNEW had a very odd philosophy about news or the New York Times omitted some listings info ...<P ID="signature">_____

Highwayman 128 noted WNEW-5's news scheduling in the Fall of 1965:

> Sunday, 25 minutes, a political talk, then a half-hour of > "wire services". Tuesday and Thursday, ten minutes;

> Wednesday, 45; Monday, Friday, and Saturday, nothing?

I think "Wire Services" was really "Wire Service", a fictional drama series that had run on network television back in the late 1950's.

> Either WNEW had a very odd philosophy about news or the New > York Times omitted some listings info ...

I suspect the latter.

WNEW's 11 P.M. local newscasts must have been killed in the ratings by the network O&O's; in (the Spring of??) 1967, WNEW abandoned 11 P.M. news and started-up a 10 P.M. newscast (sister station WTTG-5 in Washington had started a 10 P.M. newscast the previous year; I think sister station KTTV-11 Los Angeles may have even preceded WTTG with a 10 P.M. newscast) which became quite successful and was copied by independent stations everywhere (with those independents in the Central and Mountain time zones running 9 P.M. local newscasts, which was equivalent to 10 P.M. Eastern/Pacific).

Can someone possibly post the same schedules for the rest of the New York stations (or have they already been posted)?

The irony is that after WNEW launched The 10 O'Clock News in 1967, WPIX - a longtime local news pioneer - itself got killed in the news ratings, setting off a chain of events that led to a series of scandals with their newscasts in late 1968 that in turn led to a well-publicized and highly-reported decade-long license challenge. Another casualty of WNEW's 10 O'Clock News: longtime WPIX news director and anchor John Tillman, whose nearly two-decades-long run with the station came to an end in late 1967.

As for Metropolitan Movie, on the Sunday 3 PM and Saturday 10 PM time slots: Apparently, that name took effect the very day the former WABD became WNEW-TV on Sept. 7, 1958 (for the New York TV debut of Angels with Dirty Faces); its predecessor may have been known as Warner Bros. Movie, on which pre-1948 WB titles as allocated to Channel 5 (as opposed to the group of films WCBS had that were premiered on The Early Show and The Late Show) had their New York TV premieres on Sunday nights in prime time. Metropolitan Movie was a reference to what in 1958 had been the Metropolitan Broadcasting Corporation, which owned Channel 5, and what as of 1965 was the Metropolitan Broadcasting Television division of Metromedia, Inc. (This movie title was also in use by Washington, DC's WTTG Channel 5, per 1961 listings for DC and Baltimore put up recently.) After that division was renamed Metromedia Television in 1967 (which dovetailed with the introduction of a proprietary sans-serif font called "Metromedia Television Alphabet" for use on their TV stations beginning in August), this movie series was rechristened Metromedia Movie, which it remained until 1986 when Fox took over. The Sunday 1 PM movie would doubtless have been 5 Star Movie, another umbrella title which dated to at least 1958 (and, until 1961, run within the same weeknight time slot that Hollywood's Finest, which debuted in 1962, was occupying at this point). I don't know what title(s) their 10 AM and 1:30 PM weekday movies were run by as of 1965, but at the start of the decade they were run under the respective banners of the 10 O'Clock Movie and Late Lunch Movie.

I.I.N.M., WNEW was also the last of the New York commercial VHF TV stations to go color, albeit only with film and slide capacity at the outset (among the first feature films shown in color on Channel 5 were the original Alec Guinness/Peter Sellers The Ladykillers, on the Sept. 9, 1965 Hollywood's Finest, and the Alan Ladd film The McConnell Story, on the Sept. 10, 1965 edition of Movie Greats); WPIX had done some colorcasting since mid-1965, and WOR had broadcast some films in color beginning in fall 1960.

I would presume East of Eden (part of a package of post-1948 Warners' films that, until a few months before this week of 1965, had been with WNBC-TV since 1961) was likewise shown by Channel 5 in color . . .

This is why WNEW was such a great station to grow up with. All of these guys, along with WPIX's Joe Bolton, were like gods to me as a young'un.

That said, there's a lot about this schedule that is perplexing. I don't remember Sandy and Soupy's shows spilling into early evening on weekdays like that (the shows in my memory were more of a late afternoon after-school ritual), and I definitely do not remember those Saturday versions of Chuck, Sandy, and Soupy. I wonder if those were original shows, or they just ran taped repeats of weekday episodes?

I might add that not only is this schedule emblematic of a long-lost era in TV (local kids' shows), but even in the biggest markets, it's been a long time since you've seen any station doing that many hours per week of local production, period, of any genre other than news.

Also, what was listed as "Paul Winchell" was actually Winchell-Mahoney Time, which was produced out of sister station KTTV Channel 11 in Los Angeles and syndicated to other stations (besides WNEW). At that point, per TV Guide, only the cartoons shown in-between Winchell's segments were in color.

Winchell-Mahoney Time was syndicated via-videotape recordings to several stations including most of the Kaiser Broadcasting stations. WKBG-TV (Channel 56, Cambridge, MA) was one of them. Paul Winchell's show was "wrapped-around" cartoons and other special features including "Clutch Cargo" (that unique cartoon with highly exaggerated mouth movements). The live action parts of the show were in black and white while the cartoons and the other features were in color. I believe the live action parts of Winchell-Mahoney Time were such that the local stations could insert their own local cartoons which they have the rights to air in their market.

At the time, most of the shows were "bicycled around" the various markets around the country and were returned to KTTV in Los Angeles. Metromedia had a bad habit at the time to simply recycle "spent" videotapes after the run was done. As a result, except for a few tapes toward the end of the show's run, most were lost. The late Mr. Winchell was NOT pleased at all. Who could have blamed him. Paul Winchell, a man with unique and varied talents including the patent for an artificial heart, saw many hours of his renowned children's programming go by the way of the Metromedia dumpster. I used to watch the show, back in the day, on WKBG-TV in Cambridge (Boston). I loved it. It ran on Channel 56 well into 1968.

"I think "Wire Services" was really "Wire Service", a fictional drama series that had run on network television back in the late 1950's."

Wasn't that program known as "Deadline for Action" in syndication?

8pm Wrestling was it WWWF Washington Wrestling? WWE's first TV show

I believe a show was also taped in Bridgeport, CT, in those early years of the WWWF. Maybe that's what was shown in New York.

What no talks shows (I.e. Maury, Jerry Springer, Steve Wilkos)aired in those days on WNEW?

What few first-run talk shows were in existence were tame, celebrity-driven affairs such as Merv Griffin and Mike Douglas. Both were syndicated by Group W at this point in history; my recollection is that Group W programming tended to be aired on WPIX/11 in the 1960s.

After Griffin went to CBS in 1969 and was cancelled in 1972, his second syndicated show was indeed carried on WNEW (in prime-time, as with the rest of Metromedia's stations). Douglas stayed in syndication and was with Group W all the way to 1980 (a close to 20-year relationship).

Have you done any research on the history of television talk shows? I'm guessing not if you think shows like Springer and Maury existed in 1965.

Well, maybe that was a joke, since Channel 5 today runs so many of those types of rowdy talk shows.

I thought it was a good alternative that Merv Griffin aired on Channel 5 in prime time (and as you mention, on the other Metromedia independent stations around the country). If ABC, NBC and CBS didn't have something of interest to you, or they were airing repeats, you could tune to Merv for some banter and fun. Unlike a movie or off-network drama seen on most independents in prime time, it didn't matter when you tuned in or tuned out.

That's why I didn't think it was a radical idea when NBC tried stripping Jay Leno at 10pm on weeknights, since WNEW-TV had done it decades before. But of course, Leno in prime time didn't work out at all.

When WNEW-TV moved their news from 11pm where they were losing to the other channels at that hour and moved to 10pm it established them at 10pm that is still around to this day.

Once again, you made something up because you don't know the history.

WNEW-TV made the move to 10:00 for their newscast because all of the Metromedia stations did that at the same time. It was a corporate-wide decision and was more a case of being able to expand to an hour when most independents in their markets were still doing 30 minutes. Their research had determined that no one would sit through a 60 minute newscast that started at 11:00, but would if the start time was 10:00. (An hour earlier for their stations in Central Time, of course.)

It was more about having a longer newscast to sell spots in than it was how they were doing in the ratings against WCBS, WNBC and WABC.

But surely some counter-programming to the big three network O&Os was involved. If you look at some LA TV Guides, Metromedia's KTTV 11's 10pm news may have been 60 minutes but KCOP 13 ran its 10pm news for only 30 minutes. (LA's 2, 4, 5 & 7 were all at 11pm.)

Then at 11pm, while everyone else had news, the Metromedia stations could counter-program with a sitcom or something else to grab the audience that didn't care about news. Before 10pm news for independent stations became commonplace, some independent stations, and even ABC affiliates, would delay their late news to 11:30, so they could run an entertainment show at 11pm, while the CBS and NBC affiliates were running their late news.

...you appear to not realise that, unlike New York, the anchors on the two bigger indies in Los Angeles -- KTLA/5 and KTTV/11 -- were usually bigger stars than the network O&Os had. George Putnam and Hal Fishman were on both KTLA and KTTV during their careers, and Alex Dreier arrived from WBKB/7 Chicago at KTTV in '67; the closest to such "star" anchors at the O&Os was Jerry Dunphy at CBS' KNXT/2 and Jack Latham at KNBC/4. On the other hand, the other indies -- RKO General's KHJ-TV/9, Chris Craft's KCOP/13, and eventually KIIIX and KPOL-TV/KWHY both on Channel 22, KMEX/34 and KXLA/40 -- always played catch-up ball with their newscasts. One of KHJ's anchors was Ann Marshall, better known as an actress (My Favorite Martian, My Three Sons) and pop singer (The Mike Curb Congregation, Heaven Bound). After losing some notables (Hal Fishman to KTTV, Baxter Ward to KABC-TV/7) in the early '60s, KCOP's most notable anchor wasn't a journalist, but game show announcer and former KRLA/1110 disc jockey Charlie O'Donnell. The news departments at KHJ and KCOP were so weak that by 1967 they'd both quit 10:00 newscasts; KHJ would have Allan Moll read headlines in-between prime-time movies at various times and lengths, and KCOP limited itself to one midday newscast at 11:00 AM. KIIIX's target audience, the African-American communities on Los Angeles' South Side and suburbs, limited anything they were able to try (though one of their staffers, Larry McCormick, spent decades at KTLA afterwards), as did KMEX's Spanish-speaking audience. The stock market reportage during KWHY's daytime constituted their news department, and Bilingual KXLA used their 8:00 PM newscast to split its schedule blocks, with Lyn Sherwood's first 15 minutes winding up English for the day, and Miguel Alonso's next 15 minutes kicking off the night's Spanish programming. Thus, the news market was most realistically spread five ways, between KNXT, KNBC, KTLA, KABC and KTTV, and comparing KTTV to KCOP is like comparing the Dodgers to the Loyola Marymount Lions...

The former became such a major personality that he literally walked back and forth between KTLA and KTTV several times during his career (usually at contract renewal time, sometimes because he would anger management with his editorializing) -- the stations were literally across Van Ness Ave. from each other on the south side of Sunset Blvd. -- and whichever station had him at the time would bill the 10:00 news, both in print ads and on the air, as "George Putnam News".

And the audience would invariably follow George from channel 5 to channel 11 and then back again.

In the early 1960's, KTTV also did a 15-minute newscast in the 6:00pm hour, competing with the network O&Os' casts, with Putnam as the anchor. It was there that he developed his trademark sign off: "Ladies and gentlemen, that's the news, up-to-the-minute, that's all the news. Back at ten, see you then!" (I bet King Daevid remembers that as clearly as I.)

He had another trademark signature, created when KTTV management finally gave up on ever getting him to stop editorializing and gave him a specific segment of the 10:00 news to do so. As George was about to make his point, he would precede it with "and it is this reporter's opinion that ..." (similar to way Dennis Miller would always segue from his monologue to the rant with the signal "now, I don't want to get off on a rant here, but ..." -- maybe Dennis got the idea from George!).

When he originally left the television anchor chair in 1975, he moved to radio, where he hosted a conservative interview and call-in talk show called "Talk Back" which aired on AM 870 for more than a quarter-century, then via the CRN network. For many years it originated at a remote studio in downtown L.A. at the ARCO Plaza building, where there were chairs set up for people to sit and watch the show through plate glass windows; they even had a microphone on the audience side of the windows for people to comment as if they were calling in.

He returned to anchor weekend television news at KHJ-TV and KCOP for brief stints in the 1990s, and passed away in 2008. Putnam was more right-wing than William Buckley -- his anti-Communism commentaries were legendary in their own way -- but he struck a resonant nerve with the Los Angeles viewers and was a genuine star personality.

...only from airchecks I've heard, as I was a toddler in Chicagoland at the time and my grandmother damn near glued the dial to WMAQ-TV/5 to get her nightly fix of Chet Huntley and Floyd Kalber ;-). It's also notable that George Putnam, for all his conservative bluster, openly admired some on the other side of the political ledger; Harlan Ellison, when he wrote his heavily-leftist TV column The Glass Teat for the Los Angeles Free Press, once expressed his mixed emotions at finding out Putnam was a huge fan of the column, while Harlan himself couldn't stand George at all...

Ellison is against the mongrelization of television and, by extension, American culture. I remember his evisceration of Chuck Barris after Ellison's disastrous experience on "The Dating Game." You didn't have to be a card-carrying commie to appreciate that. I'd compare it to Phil Mushnick's sports-media column in New York -- all he's looking for are sports and sports broadcasting that aren't dumbed down, vulgarized and overly commercialized. Politically, he's far to the right of Ellison, but I would think he'd appreciate Harlan's take on media and culture if he's had a chance to read it.

CBC Secret Agent

This is hilarious- I may have very well been working the overnight shift (ending at about 7 am or so) at KCPQ this weekend. I did Saturday and Sunday (or was it Friday and Saturday?) overnights for quite a while in the very late 80's and early '90's. Warning: That 5 am airing of Headline News may not have been live! We often taped an hour in the middle of the night because we needed the satellite dish for some other program at 5 am.

Speaking of Headline News, wasn't there a straight-on-syndicated version (30 minutes)? KIMA had Headline News at 12PM for many years (they did have a short-lived local newscast, and then went back to CNN) until around 2002. They may have been the last over-the-air station with CNN-HN.

Hope you enjoyed watching Monsters and Friday the 13th; etc.

"The Fallen Idol." [1948] The young son of a diplomat, Phillipe (Bobby Henrey), often finds himself alone. To entertain the boy, the household butler, Baines (Ralph Richardson), creates adventurous stories of his past. As a result, Phillipe idolizes the servant, seeing him as a hero. But when Baines' wife (Sonia Dresdel) falls to her death, the police believe Baines was behind it. Phillipe, who witnessed the event, will do anything to protect the butler -- but he only makes things worse by doing so.

2AM Movie

"Svengali." [1931] With his powers of hypnosis, the cruel music teacher Svengali (John Barrymore) is able to control women. When he sets his sights on the beautiful Trilby O'Farrell (Marian Marsh), she falls under his spell -- but her true love, Billee (Bramwell Fletcher), won't be taken easily out of the picture. Though Svengali gets the golden-voiced Trilby to fake her death, and then brings her on a tour of Europe, Billee uncovers the deception and sets out to wrest her from Svengali's clutches.

[1990] Based on the popular Tom Clancy novel, this suspenseful movie tracks Soviet submarine captain Marko Ramius (Sean Connery) as he abandons his orders and heads for the east coast of the United States. Equipped with innovative stealth technology, Ramius' submarine, "Red October," is virtually invisible. However, when an American sub briefly detects the Russians' presence, CIA agent Jack Ryan (Alec Baldwin) sets out to determine Ramius' motives, fearing he may launch an attack on the U.S.

I was only one at the time, so can't give you any personal notes. But anyway:

--A 9am movie? Was anyone else airing a flick this early, especially network affiliates in the 70s?

--"Gunsmoke" in the access slot reminds me I've seen a lot of hour shows in access in the 70s.
When did stations universally shift to just doing half-hour shows?

--You're right that Yakima didn't have cable this time; they did have it by 1978.

--If you're wondering why "MacGyver" comes on Sunday, remember that KOMO Seattle was still tape delaying Monday Night Football at this time until 7pm. So they passed up the usual West Coast practice of airing "MacGyver" right after football; don't know if they stuck to that in later years.

--The Seahawks game started at 10pm, but the pregame didn't start until 4pm? Odd.

--Finally, does anyone about the listing for "Nanny" at 7pm? Obviously, the Fran Drescher sitcom didn't start until years later, and the names don't match up with "Nanny and the Professor". I wonder what show it refers to.

Nanny may be a British show of some kind.

Seahawks game was on at 10AM - east coast away game. The Postgame may have been prerecorded to air after American Graffiti.

Yes, KOMO still thought that 6:00PM news was better than airing MNF live. Unlike KAPP-35, which aired MNF right at 6PM.

I'm still wondering if Adventure BC was a CBUT-only program, or if it was relayed to the other CBC affiliates. I now know that this was CBC North's feed, and not channel 2 Vancouver...

-crainbebo

And by the way, CBC was carrying the Emmy Awards LIVE on the West Coast, while NBC aired it on taped delay out there! What a shock!

Re: RETRO: MID-SOUTH, OCT. 4TH, 1976

I'm guessing this came out of the Memphis Commercial Appeal "Mid-South" TV tab? They had a section in the back which featured an expanded area of listings for the likes of Paducah/Cape Girardeau, Jackson, etc.

Couple of observations -- WMC 5 picking up Dinah! was only the beginning of their notorious dismantling of NBC daytime.

Second, I'd forgotten how WLBT 3 in Jackson did their own share of preemptions in the '70s. The 9:00 program was the local institution Coffee With Judy, hosted by Judy Moon (formerly a "weather girl"), plus the "Romper Room"-styled Our Playmates. The latter was an award-winning show - created very soon after the station passed into "interim" hands in 1971.

I was living in Tupelo in 1976, so the afternoon schedules really took me back. Brady Bunch, back to back, on 5 and 9 respectively. Those were the days..... : : :

Re: RETRO: MID-SOUTH, OCT. 4TH, 1976

Thanks for the info about Judy and Playmates, Russell W. I lived in Northeast, MS then and could pick up all the Memphis stations, Tupelo, and Florence, AL. But we couldn't get the central MS stations. I've always been fascinated by local programming. When I was a kid, I always wanted people to bring me back TV Guides from their travels. I was a very odd kid, but I got a kick out of knowing what other people got to see, and wondering what their locally produced shows were like.

Re: RETRO: MID-SOUTH, OCT. 4TH, 1976

I noticed some fairly strange things here.

Only two of the Jackson, Mississippi stations were listed, and one of those was a U, WAPT. The odd man out here was CBS affil WJTV, on channel 12. Wonder what the CA's thinking was on that?

Take these things into consideration: 1) The CA's circulation reach at the time was probably the northern third of the state of Mississippi, down to about Greenville, Greenwood, and maybe as far as Columbus. Surely it didn't go down as far as, say, Vicksburg?

This becomes important because 2) UHF signals were notoriously weak in those days, and I don't know the technical facts, but WAPT's reach couldn't have been more than in a 60-mile radius around Jackson--far short of the southern end of CA's southern boundary in the Mississippi Delta.

Meanwhile, 3) WJTV probably had a similar reach to WLBT, some 75-90 standard miles as one would expect from a V in a geographically large, predominantly rural market like Jackson. Its signal, by contrast, was probably visible in the southern part of the Delta. So the CA's listing WAPT really made no sense.

Also conspicuously missing are the Arkansas stations, namely the three Little Rock V affils, Jonesboro ABC affil KAIT, and the state ETV system. Perhaps this listing was culled from a separate edition aimed at the areas east and south of Memphis, I don't know. But that would be the only explanation I could imagine.

Further, only one Nashville station is listed for those parts of western Tennessee near the Tennessee River within the fringe areas of the 100-mile signals of the Vs in that market--WTVF. Strangely enough, in those days, WTVF was short-spaced to Memphis' WMC-TV, the NBC affil. Wonder how cable systems (what few existed then, probably) and viewers fared with two close signals warring for that channel space? But more to the point, why didn't the CA list ABC affil WNGE (now WKRN) or NBC affil WSM (now WSMV)? Those two stations probably came in much clearer to viewers east of Jackson, Tennessee, without the interference that would have dogged WTVF back in the day (all memories now with DTV and ubiquitous cable, of course).

Point being, the CA was pretty arbitrary in its selections for the daily TV page. It may not have been so with the Sunday insert, perhaps approaching the breadth of the old Louisville Courier-Journal, with its listing of every TV signal that came into the state of Kentucky. But I don't think I would have found the CA reliable if I were living in those times. About the only thing that our new technologies have made simpler, IMO, is the elimination of out-of-market OTA signals from cable systems (most of them, anyway).

WAPT really made no sense.

Even more so, notably missing from this lineup is the one VHF station in the Greenwood/Greenville area - WABG Channel 6 (ABC). I can't speak for its reach - and I can only guess (without looking at old BC Yearbooks) that in 1976 they were still on a shorter tower. Still, that would be an ABC I'd include before going with WAPT.

[side remark: There was an ad I saw in a late '60s Clarion-Ledger for WABG 6, touting "the full ABC schedule" ... so I'm led to wonder how close a watchable signal extended toward Jackson]

As for the Appeal's circulation area, I can guess that it's highly doubtful it reached much beyond US 82 across the state. Below that, and you're in prime Clarion-Ledger territory.

At the same time, I do believe WAPT was on the cable system in Starkville (and for a time, even WBRC/Birmingham was, too).

But that still doesn't explain the omission of WJTV 12. Prior to WXVT 15 powering up out of Greenville and bring a local CBS to the area, I'd think WJTV had just as much influence as WREG ... corresponding with the overlap of NBC on WLBT and WMC.

Or, here's a more proper short answer: ???

Also conspicuously missing are the Arkansas stations, namely the three Little Rock V affils, Jonesboro ABC affil KAIT, and the state ETV system. Perhaps this listing was culled from a separate edition aimed at the areas east and south of Memphis, I don't know. But that would be the only explanation I could imagine.

That's an even bigger head-scratcher. Jonesboro's cable historically carried the Little Rock stations along with Memphis and local KAIT (and KTEJ 19 - AETN's repeater when it signed on in 1976). Fact is, most of the Little Rock stations had virtually statewide coverage cable-wise at one time or another.

Re: RETRO: MID-SOUTH, OCT. 4TH, 1976

KATV was even carried on the cable in West Memphis at one time.

I know the tv listings in the Commercial Appeal were zoned but that wouldn't explain this channel line up.

WNGE was probably not viewed in too many counties where the CA circulated but WSM was on the cable in Jackson along with WTVF.

Despite being on channel 5, WTVF was on the cable in more of West TN than any of the other Nashville stations. There were some places in Northwest TN where ABC was apparently WBBJ, NBC was WPSD and CBS was WTVF instead of WREG or KFVS which makes no sense to me.

Re: RETRO: MID-SOUTH, OCT. 4TH, 1976

To Brian and Russell:

Russell, good job building upon my concerns! I didn't even notice the absence of WABG, which makes all of this even more strange as hell. On channel 6, I suspect it might have been seen as far north as Oxford and Tunica, perhaps, in counties that had plenty of CA subscribers and paper boxes.

I don't know nearly as much about Arkansas, but I suspect you would be right in that at least one, if not all, of the Little Rock Vs would be viewed in places like Forrest City, Marianna, and Helena, in the Delta region. Maybe the CA didn't get good circulation in Arkansas outside the extreme eastern counties along present-day Interstate 40, as it might have in Mississippi. We must remember that Little Rock had a spirited competition between two dailies, the Democrat and the Gazette (which have since merged), that were surely available everywhere in the state, thereby leaving many retailers with no room to have CA boxes in addition to the Little Rock dailies and the local papers.

As for you, Brian, you have brought up a point that is way-crazy, even by the standards of that time. People would actually prefer watching CBS on Nashville's channel 5, knowing full well that the signal might get interrupted by Memphis' WMC, rather than a perhaps fuzzier, but more certain picture from WREG or even KFVS? On cable, of course, it would not have been an issue due to different head ends (I would love to find out info about where they would have been located), but cable was only available in the county-seat towns (if there); out in the country, you apparently had to take your chances. Has anybody on this forum ever spent time in ages past in that no-man's land (sorry, ladies, for being sexist) of rural western Tennessee and encountered the WTVF/WMC short-spacing issue and the war those signals obviously fought for reception on your set?

I think your smiley answer, Russell, is the only one that can be provided regarding these issues. But here's something to remember: the CA listed its sister TV station, WMC, first everyday in the listings before WREG, WHBQ, and WKNO, despite having only the second channel number sequentially (3, 5, 10, 13). The parent organization back then, of course, was Scripps-Howard, then one of the biggest publishers and broadcasters around. That may explain, for instance, the decision not to list Nashville's WSM as a rival NBC station for western Tennessee (or KARK for eastern Arkansas)--although to be fair, it did list WPSD for northwestern Tennessee, WTVV for northeastern Mississippi, and WLBT for the Mississippi Delta. It also suggests that the paper "played favorites" with those stations it did list, favoring some and excluding others on the basis of its perceptions of how each station would affect the ratings of WMC. Sounds cynical, I know, but even then TV was a cut-throat biz. (But then, how do you explain the absence of the ETV systems in Arkansas and Mississippi? PBS had, as it does today, only a miniscule audience.)

The Vikings beat the Steelers on Monday Night Football 17-6. The Steelers started 1976 out 1-4 and finished 10-4.

I know this is a very old thread, but I thought some of you might be interested in some additional details.

I grew up in Rolling Fork, Mississippi, which is about 45 miles north of Vicksburg. When I was very small, WAPT was not yet on the air, so we didn't really watch any UHF channels (WMAA, if memory serves, was channel 29, but...we rarely watched public television). Also, we didn't have cable; Rolling Fork didn't get cable until after I started college, I believe. We had a tall antenna on the back of our house that we had to go outside and physically turn in one direction or another.

When WAPT started broadcasting, we found it difficult to tune in on our TV (which of course had the type of UHF dial that was similar to a radio dial -- difficult to tune precisely), so we continued to watch ABC programming on WABG (Greenwood-Greenville), which required going outside and turning the antenna to point north, toward Greenville, rather than southeast, toward Jackson. I used to do this on Saturday mornings when I wanted to watch Super Friends on ABC.

Like another poster in the thread, I have distinct memories of Coffee with Judy. I had completely forgotten about Our Playmates, but when I saw this thread, the memory came rushing back...I can still hear the announcer saying the name of the show as it started (was that Woody Assaf?).

I'm also interested to see the clearance for the ABC soap Ryan's Hope, which was a terrific show. Of the all-ABC stations listed, WHBQ (Memphis) doesn't seem to have carried it at all; WAPT (Jackson, MS) carried it at the "regular" time of noon, and WBBJ (Jackson, TN) carried it at the "daytime graveyard" time (if I may invent a term) of 3:30 p.m.

I am curious about the WLBT listing. It has Dark Shadows listed at 3:30 p.m. but it aired from June 27, 1966 – April 2, 1971. Was DS already in syndication that quickly?

Yes. It was in reruns.

BTW I was living in Tipton County, Tennessee at the time and the CA did have regional TV listings, but If you were wondering if they were selective in what stations to print, not all the time. They would have the Arkansas, Alabama, and even the Nashville stations listed but it would be a hit-and-miss.

According to <http://tvschedule.zap2it.com/tvlisti...aid=tvschedule>, KATV is still carried to this day in West Memphis

WMC shows they had NBC's 50 Grand Slam, which along with Stumpers (which WMC didn't clear) debuted on this date. But the other NBC stations in the list don't show these two listed, still showing Celebrity Sweepstakes and The Fun Factory both of which ended October 1st. I was thinking that these were day delays but the time slots show they are in pattern.

But I don't think I would have found the CA reliable if I were living in those times. About the only thing that our new technologies have made simpler, IMO, is the elimination of out-of-market OTA signals from cable systems (most of them, anyway).

One of the Detroit papers used to have a Sunday insert that included all the Michigan stations, plus the Toledo stations and four stations from Ontario (CBET, CHBX, CJIC, and CKCO-3)

Retro: Chicago/Milwaukee TV Guide for Friday, November 20, 1953

1953 was an early year for TV and for TV Guide. In this edition, Julius LaRosa and Dorothy McGuire are on the cover with the headline "Meet the Girl LaRosa Loves--Dorothy McGuire" This was not long after Arthur Godfrey fired LaRosa live on the air, which is discussed in one article and a look at McGuire as LaRosa's new girlfriend in another. The price was 15 cents.

No, those were different stations ... and the CBS involvement referenced in the original post is slightly skewed.

Here is the story of WCAN:

<http://www.uhftelelevision.com/articles/wcan.html>

The Cincinnati station was part of the ashes of the ill-fated Overmyer Network:

12:25 Lee Phillip. Fashion tips.

...Lee Phillip held this time slot on WBBM-TV for decades before co-creating and producing The Young & the Restless and The Bold & the Beautiful for CBS. Thus, her association with CBS is by far the longest anyone has ever had with CBS, and is only surpassed by Don Pardo's association with NBC...

2:30 Bob Crosby. "Papaya Mama," "Ebb Tide" and a football medley. (Brother of Bing Crosby.)

...and, by this time (IIRC), the bandleader on Jack Benny's Lucky Strike Program...

3pm Petticoat Party--Games. Frazer Thomas. (Guests invited to Garrick Theater. No tickets needed.)

...like Ray Rayner, Frazier Thomas wound up at WGN-TV, hosting Garfield Goose and Friends, Family Classics and Bozo's Circus...

3:30 Shopping with Miss Lee. Buying hints and fashion tips.

...Lee Phillip again. She even had a "Battle of the Sexes" item on WBBM Radio and TV with Paul Gibson entitled The Lady & The Tiger...

5pm Garfield Goose. "King" Garfield and Frazer Thomas. (Same guy who hosted Petticoat Party at 3pm.)

...and same show that Thomas took to WGN-TV and hosted until 1976...

6pm Bob Elson--Sports

...Elson had a long history of calling Cubs and White Sox games for WCFL Radio, where he still had a morning drive talk program at this time; his call of a 1936 post-season Cubs-White Sox exhibition game, and a subsequent sportscast over NBC-owned WENR, is at

<https://archive.org/download/1930-19...hite%20Sox.mp3...>

10pm Fahey Flynn--News

...Flynn would be fired from WBBM-TV in 1968 because refused to stop wearing bow ties on-camera; he took his bow ties to WBKB/7 and stayed on the air for another dozen-plus years

4 WTMJ-TV Milwaukee NBC (They stay on the air after midnight but don't carry the Today show in the morning. They produce many of their own shows and only carry some of the NBC schedule.)

11am What's New in Kitchens?

...my grandmother, Rosemary Bornhuetter, was one of the earliest hosts of this long-running cooking show...

5:30 Lloyd Pettit--Sports

...Pettit later worked for WGN-TV as a color commentator for Chicago Cubs games and the play-by-play voice of the Chicago Blackhawks...

7pm Dave Garroway Show. Music-variety series with Cliff Norton, Shirley Hermer, Skitch Henderson. (Did Garroway host this prime time show in addition to the Today Show?)

...yes, he did. This was essentially a continuation of Garroway At Large, the Chicago-based variety hour that brought him his first national fame...

8pm Liberace--Music

...the syndicated half-hour from KTLA/5 Los Angeles...

5 WNBQ Chicago NBC (I guess these early call letters were a cross between WMAQ and NBC?)

...yep. In the '40s and '50s, most of the original call signs of the NBC and CBS O&O's didn't copy their radio counterparts. In NBC's case, New York was WNBT rather than WEAQ-TV, Cleveland was WNBK rather than WTAM-TV, Washington was WNBW rather than WRC-TV, and Chicago was WNBQ. NBC also had KNBH in Los Angeles, but they never owned a radio station in Los Angeles or Hollywood...

6pm Clint Youle--Weather (Notice WNBQ has no real 6pm evening newscast.)

6:05 Alex Dreier--Features

...actually, Dreier was WNBQ's 6:00 newscaster...

10:45 Herbie Mintz--Music. (Before NBC had the Tonight Show, WNBQ has two local music shows in late night.)

11pm Howard Miller--Music. Records, guests and chatter.

...Miller was also the top morning disc jockey in Chicago radio at the time, on WIND...

7 WBKB Chicago ABC (Becomes WLS-TV in 1968. Because ABC's daytime schedule is so limited, stations like WBKB have to do their own mix of kiddie shows, local talk/variety shows and cooking programs to fill the schedule. --- Also note that seven local newscasts through the day are done by Ulmer Turner. Even though they are brief, his newscasts are at 10:55am, 11:55am, 12:55pm, 2:25pm, 4pm, then others do the dinnertime news, then he's back for the 11pm and 1:30am newscasts. Did his day really go this long or did WBKB just credit him for most news, even though others on staff would do fringe times?)

...Turner did all the newscasts he's credited with here...

2pm Claude Kirchner Show. Comments especially for women. (How did he do this show in Chicago and do a 4pm show in Milwaukee on WTMJ on the same day?)

...the WTMJ-TV show was a kinescope of an earlier WBKB broadcast...

6pm Austin Kiplinger--News

6:05 Jack Drees--News (I wonder how this newscast differs from the 6pm news?)

...I believe Kiplinger's newscast was mainly business news headlines, while Drees, later a sportscaster for CBS, concentrated on sports headlines...

9 WGN-TV Chicago Dumont Network (When the Dumont Network shut down in 1956, WGN-TV was independent for the next several decades.)

...WGN-TV had earlier split the Chicago CBS-TV affiliation with WBKB/4 before CBS bought Channel 4, renamed it WBBM-TV, moved that station to Channel 2 and sold the old WBKB studios and call sign to ABC's WENR-TV/7...

6:15 Number Please--Quiz. Jack Brickstone.

...no, Jack Brickhouse. Voice of the Chicago Cubs for decades, also play-by-play man for the Chicago White Sox, Bears and Blackhawks at different times and the king of Chicago pro wrestling commentators...

25 WCAN-TV Milwaukee CBS (Wikipedia says this station had good ratings for an early UHF outlet, sometimes beating VHF WTMJ-TV 4. But in 1954, CBS bought another UHF station in Milwaukee to air CBS programming, and WCAN was off the air a short time later.)

...actually, CBS bought what had been WOKY-TV/19, the ABC and DuMont affiliate. Eleven months after this, WOKY-TV would lose its ABC affiliation to WTVW/12, and DuMont was already crumbling, so CBS bought them out and transferred the network programming from WCAN-TV to Channel 19. CBS also bought WCAN-TV's studio site and operated the newly-renamed WXIX from there...

9:30 The Files of Jeffery Jones. Dan Haggerty. (WCAN doesn't run Edward R. Murrow here.)

...not tonight, anyway. But when Murrow did his See It Now exposes of Senator Joseph McCarthy, WCAN-TV was the only Wisconsin CBS affiliate to carry them; WBAY-TV/2 Green Bay ran a DuMont wrestling show from Chicago and WKOW-TV/27 ran Badge 714, the syndicated reruns of Dragnet...

10:05 Dr. A. A. Suppan--News (A doctor does the news?)

...yep...

Did the early Chicago-Milwaukee TVG editions later get Madison and Rockford stations included (similar to the later Illinois-Wisconsin edition with all four of those markets)? Were there even other markets' stations (e.g., the Champaign and Quad Cities' V's) included in early Chicago-area TVG's?

Actually, since that contradicted some of the information in Dick Golembiewski's article at the History of UHF Television website, I did some additional research on that part of the WCAN-TV article and will be updating same.

WOKY-TV did not "lose" the ABC affiliation. They announced on September 1, 1954 that they were relinquishing it effective October 1, and ABC later announced WTVW would take the affiliation when it began commercial operation (which ended up being October 27).

CBS had originally planned on affiliating with channel 6 in Whitefish Bay when it went on the air, but it was still in hearings at that time, with Hearst being the leading applicant. But in the summer of 1954, Hearst's radio-television columnists launched an attack on CBS' news commentators, which forced them to look at their options. That was when the game plan changed to the one that actually happened, using WOKY-TV's license with WCAN-TV's facilities.

Hey, guys! Any way you can do the schedules for December 31st., 1999?

San Diego TV - July 2, 1973

This comes from the San Diego Union-Tribune, July 2, 1973. Just the day before, ABC moved from XETV/ch. 6 to KCST/ch. 39, the result of a lawsuit KCST filed charging that a station licensed to Mexico cannot air programs from an American TV network (XETV is licensed to Tijuana, MX).

Additional note: the Watergate hearings are being aired in rotation by the networks, so daytime fare will be affected. I'm not sure which network aired it this day.

What normally aired from 5 to 8?

Not sure since I only had access to that day's listing. The baseball game came from NBC, so I can assume that at least at 6 was to be local news and 6:30 was NBC News. Then prime time access fare at 7 and 7:30.

This comes from the San Diego Union-Tribune, July 2, 1973. Just the day before, ABC moved from XETV/ch. 6 to KCST/ch. 39, the result of a lawsuit KCST filed charging that a station licensed to Mexico cannot air programs from an American TV network (XETV is licensed to Tijuana, MX).

I forgot about this post when the History of UHF Television website went live last Christmas, or I would have posted this then.

The above is sort-of correct, but having researched channel 39's history using Broadcasting and the San Diego Union (the merger with the Evening Tribune didn't take place until 1992), it's slightly backwards and not complete.

KAAR had gone dark concurrent with KEBS/15 signing on June 12, 1967. It was then sold to Bass Brothers Enterprises and returned to the air as KCST February 2, 1968. It was under the Bass ownership that the question of ABC affiliation came up.

When XETV took the ABC affiliation in 1956, it was a necessity due to there being only two television stations licensed in the San Diego market on the U.S. side of the border. That was the basis for the FCC granting ABC permission to transmit their programming across the border to XETV, but the authorization had to be renewed annually. When it came up for renewal in 1968, KCST challenged it at the FCC because they were now the third licensed station in the market on the U.S. side.

Both XETV and ABC fought back, and the battle stretched on until 1971, when an administrative law judge handed down an initial decision favoring the status quo but calling for ABC to be subjected to an annual audit due to claims they had made in their arguments about potential hardship. However, the FCC is not bound to accept an ALJ's decision and in 1972 they declared the XETV affiliation to not be in the public interest, considering the critical point not to be the claimed financial hardships of the network or channel 6 but the reasoning in the original 1956 decision ... channel 39 was now the third station and it was entitled to a network affiliation if it wanted one and no FCC-licensed station had it.

One month before the July, 1972 deadline for ABC to switch the affiliation, XETV and the network filed appeals of the FCC decision, but the decision was upheld by the appellate courts and so the switch took place as described ... a year late and in two parts, as described in the article at the UHF site linked below.

So it was not a lawsuit that made it to federal court, but an appeal of an FCC decision, and the filings were by XETV and ABC, not KCST (which had only filed challenges at the Commission level).

Do you have anything from the fall of 1971 for San Diego?

I do have the Union TV Week section for the week of September 5-11 of that year but it's going to be a real b*tch to transcribe as it is in hard-to-read type. Easier for me to zip up the 14 pages and send it off to you.

As previously noted, I have the first full week of September, and have posted the Sunday listings here:

<http://www.radiodiscussions.com/show...02#post6064502>

I will need to do these in multiple posts as the source publication type gives me a headache if I spend too much time all at once with it.

Atlanta: March 30, 1964

This comes from the Atlanta Journal (which at that time had not combined with its morning edition, the Atlanta Constitution on their Monday-through-Saturday issues). It marked the debut

BY REQUEST: San Diego, Sunday, September 5, 1971

from the San Diego Union TV Week supplement

Note: Although the Union also listed the VHF's from Los Angeles plus KCET/28, I am only listing the San Diego stations here, because the font and size they chose is hard enough to read in the first place. They even listed KEYT/3 in Santa Barbara, which was viewable in much of the coastal region of San Diego County due to the signal path being a straight line over the Pacific Ocean.

Network programs are marked with a * based on simultaneous carriage by the L.A. network O&O station.

Very nice. This was the finale for the network kids' shows listed (except for Tom & Jerry, which would run one more year on CBS and Woody Woodpecker which had one more year on NBC).

Something I should have noted: The CBS "Six Wives of Henry VIII" was carried on a tape-delay on Saturday evening this same week, making it a case of a pre-empted and delayed network program later pre-empting another network program.

8:30 - It Was A Very Good Year

...these are ABC networked programs not cleared by XETV. It Was a Very Good Year was a nostalgia variety show that was hosted by Mel Torme...

Well, something is still wrong, then, because that would indicate XETV pre-empted the 7:30-9:00 block on Monday nights, but the movie they were listed as showing on that Monday was also airing on KABC-TV/7 and KEYT/3, so obviously it was an ABC network movie.

It is conceivable that XETV decided to make an exception to the Monday night pre-empt because of the delayed start time of the regular ABC Monday night movie ... but what did KCST run if the network had a movie feeding which XETV was clearing?

7:30pm Listing 9/6/71

Click to make readable

...perhaps KCST was getting weeks-old tapes from ABC instead of taking the series off the live feed? I just checked Brooks and Marsh, and they claim the final episode of It Was a Very Good Year aired on the ABC line the previous week, August 30th...

Brooks & Marsh have always been meticulous about checking multiple sources for start and end dates of series, so I'll accept their claim.

Here is a possibility: We know KCST was in the middle of their legal battle before the FCC about the ABC affiliation in 1971, so it is entirely possible that while the network probably wanted the clearances for the shows if XETV didn't carry them, they may not have wanted to pay for a live network interconnection to KCST under the circumstances. But their Los Angeles O&O was just up the 5 freeway so it wouldn't have been too difficult to bicycle tapes to and from there on a one-week delay.

Or maybe AT&T didn't want to switch the circuit also used by KCST for CBS on Mondays back and forth at 9:00, or maybe there had been a problem in the past with that switch happening on time. Or maybe they were reluctant to mess with the XETV connection while the legal battle was happening, since the television microwave relay network was completely under FCC jurisdiction.

If I had the listings for the following week (which I do not) I could follow a hunch I have, which is that XETV was going to be carrying ABC during that Monday night period going forward so KCST would have been out in the cold anyway. But if they knew that in advance -- and the network certainly would have advised them -- why didn't they schedule something from their local library in that slot, unless they were indeed running those ABC programs on tape delay?

Another possibility is that those three shows did not air on channel 39 on September 6 but the schedule provided to the San Diego Union by KCST still had them scheduled, and the replacement information didn't get to the newspaper in time for it to be corrected pre-press.

I'm sure no one back then would have ever thought that 40 years in the future, there would be this much time spent discussing whether or not those three ABC shows aired on that night on that UHF station!

I think I found the answer, but it leads to more questions.

I went back to my source for the San Diego Union television listings and got the Monday prior (August 30) and following (September 13) pages from TV Week for those dates.

On August 30, KCST aired It's Your Bet at 7:30pm (the usual weeknight offering in that time slot) followed by Theater One from 8:00 to 9:30pm. XETV did not clear any of the three ABC shows in question, but they did not air from 7:30 to 9:00 that week ... they aired from 9:00 to 10:30, following a pre-season NFL game between the Jets and the Chiefs. (Channel 6, meanwhile, aired the programming that would have aired at 6:00 in that time slot (Wild Wild West/Truth or Consequences). Channel 39 had a movie on at 9:30. Obviously, the KCST airings of Let's Make A Deal, The Newlywed Game, and It was A Very Good Year were on a one-week delay.

So now what is unknown is whether KCST usually carried those three ABC shows at their usual times, or if XETV's pre-emption was only for that one Monday. And if so, what did XETV carry from 7:30 to 9:00 on Mondays? And why didn't they just run the pre-empted programs on a tape delay later in the week? For that matter, why didn't KCST?

I get no clues from the September 13 listings as KCST pre-empted its regular schedule beginning at 7:00pm to carry the lightweight championship fight between Ken Buchanan and Ismael Laguna. XETV had To Tell The Truth at 7:30 and Man In Motion at 8:00, then joined the network on schedule at 8:30 for a movie. KABC had a local movie from 6:30 to 8:00, then a NFL preview show before the network flick; KEYT ran Partridge Family at 7:30 and That Girl at 8:00.

I wonder if the August 23 listings would help.

need help finding an air date

You'd think that, since I've been collecting Barbie dolls since the 1980s, that I would have written down the date that a Barbie-related cartoon aired. Stupid me didn't do it. There is no mention of this program at the IMDb.

Some background:

The second series of the Barbie and the Rockers dolls were sold in 1987: Barbie, Ken, Diva, DeeDee, Dana and Derek.

Barbie's new band in 1988 was the Sensations: Barbie, Becky, Bopsy and Belinda.

In the summer of 1988 or 1989, the Fox network aired a cartoon that was actually two parts. The first half was about Barbie and the Rockers in outer space, called Out of this World. The second half was about the Sensations and was called Rockin' Back to Earth. It was shown only this one time, and as far as I know, has not been seen on TV since. These segments were released individually on VHS by Hi-Tops Video in 1990. Yes, I have the VHS tapes, but there is no mention of the original air date.

Do any of you have a way to look up when the cartoon aired? Obviously it would have been from 8 to 9 p.m. When I do a Google search, there are some details about it being a pilot for animated series in 1987. It may have been a pilot, but the 1987 date was when the songs were written. Since the Sensations weren't sold until 1988 there's no way it could have aired the year before.

I belong to a number of Barbie discussion groups on the Internet, but I doubt that asking at any of them would be helpful. At the risk of sounding like I am both bragging and completely obsessed, I'm the one who can answer people's trivia questions. If I don't know it, then nobody else does, either!

Weekday Daytime and Late Night, September 6-10, 1971

from the San Diego Union TV Week supplement

Note: Although the Union also listed the VHF's from Los Angeles plus KCET/28, I am only listing the San Diego stations here, because the font and size they chose is hard enough to read in the first place. They even listed KEYT/3 in Santa Barbara, which was viewable in much of the coastal region of San Diego County due to the signal path being a straight line over the Pacific Ocean.

Network programs are marked with a * based on simultaneous carriage by the L.A. network O&O station.

During weeknight prime-time, Mission Cable and Southwestern Cable ran local programming on channels 2, 4 and 7 to blackout network programming duplication from Los Angeles. Most of it is forgettable "free films" fare, but "4C" ran the Grand Ole Opry for 2½ hours every weeknight in what was apparently first-run syndication.

As a SoCal native and having lived in the San Diego market when I was quite young, I notice that channel 10 continued to black out the first hour of the Today show for cartoons as they did a decade earlier.

I suspect their reasoning was multi-fold.

First, Today was always on a three-hour delay out here, meaning that the first hour on the Pacific Time Zone feed was airing a full hour after the whole program had finished in Eastern/Central, so KOGO-TV management likely thought it better to carry the last hour only, as it was the "newest" one.

Second, KFMB-TV, as they did for years, pre-empted whatever CBS ran at 8:00am for their local program Sun-Up San Diego -- which is the way they refer to it on their website -- which ran for three decades (1960-1990) and at this point in the station's history pre-empted the venerable Captain Kangaroo. They may have felt that under the circumstances it was better to have something kid-oriented and by starting at 7:00 they could get a half-hour jump on XETV/6.

Third, all the commercial time in that hour was local sales, no network inventory, and cartoons were relatively inexpensive in syndication.

This is nice, but can you post the schedule for the following week or later in the fall of '71?

No, this is the only full week I have available.

2015-16 local TV schedule lineup: Is yours lacking any new syndicated offerings?

I've noticed that not many markets are airing new or first-run syndicated shows and most are sticking with the same lineup. So far, here's what is being scheduled in Hawaii as of September 14, 2015:

We have no MNTV affiliate here.

Notice the lack of many syndicated programs. The Dr. Oz Show and Steve Harvey are COMPLETELY gone from this market, after both airing on KNDO. Those are huge losses. We are also missing several other syndicated programs and the other two trash talk shows, Jerry Springer and Maury (thank god).

Isn't WSB getting The FABLife at 2:05 am (with Meredith Vieira moving to WUPA; she should've went to WAGA at 1:00 pm)?

WSB also has "Just For Laughs Gags" Sunday nights at 12:35 am (replacing the repeat of station-produced "Hot Topics").

Not many changes. Can only find one new show, Crime Watch Daily. Also, both 29&8 and Fox 32 air Shepherd's Chapel at the same time still. 29&8 also still airs Dr. Oz twice.

I wonder why ABC had such scattered coverage of the Bicentennial, while both NBC and CBS went nearly wall to wall.

Wasn't ABC News still #3 at this time? I know ABC was the most-watched network by 1978.

And here's a really strange thing-NBC's broadcast started at 5 a.m. in Washington State while CBS coverage aired on tape delay from 8 a.m. until 12 midnight Pacific Time.

Not a typo, there really was a show with this title -- a sort of animated take off of the "Odd Couple" featuring a dog that was a slob and a neatnik cat that lived together as roommates, as I recall.

This era gave us a lot of animated versions of primetime shows, of which this was just one.

"Dolly!" the Dolly Parton show from 1976 (not the ABC flop from 1987) was the same way. Only produced for 1976-77 season, but it was regular rerun fair in the early 80s.

Commercial TV was still in its infancy, operating limited daily schedules (which remained limited for several years to come because of World War II) and for the most part depending on young and relatively little known performers. Joan Edwards married an extremely wealthy man and became a major philanthropist before her passing at the age of 88 in 2006. Burl Ives, of course, became a recording star and successful actor after the Second World War.

Re: Retro: New York City, Monday, October 27, 1941

Joan Edwards would make her everlasting mark a couple of years later, but on radio; she was the featured female singer on "Your Hit Parade" during Frank Sinatra's first tenure on that show (1943). The hysterical screaming for Ol' Blue Eyes by teenage girls in the audience launched a wave of male-only (mostly guys in the military) "Moan and Groan For Joan Clubs," probably meant more as sarcasm as anything else.

She had two television shows: "Girl About Town," which may be the show you have listed under "Joan Edwards," in 1941, and a 15-minute early-evening musical show on Tuesdays and Thursdays at 7:45 on DuMont in 1950. ("Girl About Town" became a network show on NBC in 1948 but without Ms. Edwards.) Ironically, she once wrote a song called "Television's Tough On Love"; given her short-lived television career it could have been called "Television's Tough On Me."

If you can find it, there's a picture of her rehearsing for a "Your Hit Parade" broadcast in Irving Settel's pictorial history of radio.

In 1941, experimental calls may still have been assigned to TV broadcasters in New York City. W2XBS, W2XBC and W2XBT for NBC. W2XAB and W2XCB for CBS.

I once knew someone who owned an old RCA TV with a channel 1 (his mother owned an antiques shop). He said it was originally owned by an army officer who bought it during WW2. It still worked (this was 30 years ago), though the lights dimmed a bit when it was turned on.

"In 1941, experimental calls may still have been assigned to TV broadcasters in New York City. W2XBS, W2XBC and W2XBT for NBC. W2XAB and W2XCB for CBS."

Definitely so until July 1 of that year. That was the day the FCC started handing out commercial licenses to TV stations, and WNBT and WCBW got the first ones, with a few more (WPTZ in Philly, WRGB in the Capital District) getting their commercial tickets in the months to come. DuMont got its transmitter up and running in the spring of 1941 along with CBS and NBC, but wasn't given a full commercial license (as WABD) until 1944.

The old Channel 1 running from 50 to 56 mHz disappeared from the airwaves in the spring of 1946 when the original channel was re-assigned to police and amateur services and WNBT (its only commercially licensed occupant anywhere) was re-assigned to the new Channel 4 and WABD got moved upstairs to channel 5.. Another Channel 1 at 44-50 mHz was put in the assignment tables by the FCC for small town, lower power community stations, like an early version of LPTV, but it was scrapped in 1948 without any such community station ever signing on.

think the only FCC license ever granted for Channel 1 in the post-war years was to KARO in Riverside, California but never reached the air, so it was not reassigned to one of the other VHF channels (KARO probably would have been reassigned to Channel 3 had it gone on the air, given that Los Angeles was assigned Channels 2, 4, 5, 7, 9, 11, and 13 and San Diego/Tijuana eventually got Channels 6, 8, 10, and 12).

IIRC, KARO and WSBE South Bend were granted CPs for Channel 1, but neither went on the air. WSBE eventually became WSBT-TV Channel 22.

And Riverside is too close to LA to have been assigned Channel 3. I think it was reserved for the Tijuana area back in the early '50s as well.

Santa Barbara ended up with 3 (KEYT), although that market also has 6 (KSBY) and 12 (KCOY).

Given that all the San Diego stations operate with antennae conforming to a Zone 1 station, wouldn't there have been room to assign Channel 3 to the San Diego market as well? Any transmitter would have been a good 90=100 miles from Mt. Wilson, and 190 miles from Santa Barbara...

Re: Retro: New York City, Monday, October 27, 1941

I thought the same thing, since 6 and 12 are actually in Tijuana.

Anybody know why San Diego didn't get 3?

I thought the same thing, since 6 and 12 are actually in Tijuana.

Anybody know why San Diego didn't get 3?

Because Tijuana did, though it took many years before the station finally signed on (late 1990s, if memory serves.)

The problem was real-world propagation: KEYT's Broadcast Peak site, on the coast just west of Santa Barbara, is a good 70 miles closer to SD/Tijuana than the KSBY and KCOY sites. And while the KSBY/KCOY sites are fairly well terrain-blocked from the South Coast, KEYT has a monster line-of-sight signal down the coast that's usually heavily augmented by the near-constant tropo ducting that runs from Santa Barbara down to San Diego. It's not unusual at all to hear Santa Barbara signals (especially the monsters on 103.3 and 97.5) blowing down the coast into San Diego, and my understanding is that KEYT was regularly seen in Orange and San Diego counties in the analog era, too.

Even if 3 San Diego could have been fully-spaced on paper to KEYT, it would have been a real-world disaster, with San Diego wiping out KEYT on its home turf and vice-versa.

IIRC, KARO and WSBE South Bend were granted CPs for Channel 1, but neither went on the air. WSBE eventually became WSBT-TV Channel 22.

Hate to bump an old thread, but upon further review, WSBE on Channel 1 may be an urban legend. The only pre-freeze South Bend station I can find (courtesy of the Old Gringo's basement) is one from WSBT on Channel 13 on 12/22/1947. No call letters were assigned that I can see, but it was unofficially called WSBT-TV in articles mentioning that a relay facility between Toledo and Chicago would have also been located at that facility. This relay was desired (and maybe financed -- Balaban & Katz/WBKB and Tribune/WGN-TV are specifically mentioned) by the Chicago stations so they could get network access. Listings into 1949 show it as an application, rather than a granted CP, for Channel 13.

The 8/13/51 issue of Broadcasting Magazine shows that an application from WSBT to change from Channel 13 to 34 (that was allowed during the freeze? I didn't even know the UHF channels had even been allocated yet). No call letters as yet, but of course it went on the air as WSBT-TV. So as far as I can see, no CP for Channel 1 was ever applied for by the South Bend Tribune or anyone else in that city.

And Riverside is too close to LA to have been assigned Channel 3. I think it was reserved for the Tijuana area back in the early '50s as well.

This is apparently the only commercial CP for Channel 1 ever assigned, and even then, the FCC tried to get them to apply for the LA allocations 9 or 13, which they never did AFAIK. The CP for KARO Channel 1 was cancelled in 1949.

Santa Barbara ended up with 3 (KEYT), although that market also has 6 (KSBY) and 12 (KCOY).

...however, Santa Maria wouldn't get Channel 12 until it was freed up from Fresno's KFRE-TV in 1961...

Where is ch. 7, 9, 11 and 13?

This is a pre-war listing. There were no commercial stations above Channel 4 before 1946. The 1945 Broadcasting Yearbook shows the following commercial stations, along with another dozen and a half experimental stations:

New York: WNBT (1), WCBW (2), WABD (4) -- moved to current Channels 4, 2, and 5, respectively, in 1946.

Chicago: WTZR (1 - CP), WBKB (2) -- moved to current Channels 2 and 4, respectively in 1946. WTZR never operated commercially (it was always W9XZV on-air), and Ch. 4 (as WBBM-TV) took over Channel 2 in 1953.

Los Angeles: KTSL (1 - CP) -- moved to current Channel 2 in 1946, and received its commercial license in 1948. At the time, it was W6XAO.

Philadelphia: WPTZ (3) -- moved to current Channel 3 in 1946.

Milwaukee: WMJT (3 - CP) -- signed on current Channel 3 in 1947 as WTMJ-TV, and moved to Channel 4 in 1953.

Schenectady: WRGB (3) -- stayed put, but channel number changed from 3 to 4 in 1946, and moved to Channel 6 in 1954.

The only thing close to a real network at the time was NBC, with WNBT NYC, WPTZ Philly, and WRGB Schenectady airing what little network programming there was during the war. Dumont did some experimental networking between WABD New York and then-W3XWT Washington as well.

As for New York's other channels...

WJZ-TV (WABC-TV) Channel 7 signed on 8/10/1948.

WOR-TV (WWOR-TV) Channel 9 signed on 10/11/1949.

WPIX Channel 11 Signed on 6/15/1948.

WATV (WNTA-TV/WNDT/WNET) Channel 13 signed on 5/15/1948.

...however, Santa Maria wouldn't get Channel 12 until it was freed up from Fresno's KFRE-TV in 1961...

And even then, the original proposal was to put channel 12 in Santa Barbara, not Santa Maria:

<http://www.uhftlevision.com/articles/deintermix.html>

That would have caused much the same problem as Scott Fybush outlined in post #11, methinks.WNBT Channel 1 (NBC)

W2XWB Channel 4 (DuMont)

...are there any known surviving kinescopes of WNBT on Channel 1 or W2XWB on Channel 4, or did kinescopes not even exist that early?...

There wasn't even a television transmission standard, much less kinescopes. And kinnies were "invented" to allow the networks to grow without waiting for AT&T to interconnect every station via microwave; the nets weren't even thinking in terms of that yet, given how few stations were on the air, period, in 1941.

I thought the 525/30 standard was mandated as of July 1941 in order to get a commercial license.

I wonder if this BBC-TV transmission received in New York in 1938 was the first kinescope -- 405 line/25 pps British standard, of course. Not sure of the frequency, but their Channel 1 was 45.00 MHz video and 41.5 MHz audio, both AM.

You're right, Keith ... the 525-line standard was approved by the FCC April 30, 1941. My mind was confusing the issue with the decision to rescind the February 28, 1940 441-line standard (less than three months later, on May 27) and returning television to experimental status, because RCA jumped the gun in promoting commercial television and angered the FCC in the process.

DuMont wanted a 625-line standard from the very start and the FCC called the 525-line system a "compromise" between the RCA and DuMont systems.

The FCC, wanting to be fair to both NBC and CBS, granted commercial licenses to their NYC stations starting the same day, July 1, 1941. Apparently NBC got a leg up on CBS by signing on an hour before normal on that day. So we can say that WNBT was the first commercially licensed TV station in America. And it also broadcast the first TV commercial, a ticking watch with the words "Bulova Watch Time" seen on the screen as we could read the time from the watch.

NBC's NYC station already had a daily schedule in 1939, even as an experimental station, to coincide with the RCA exhibit at the 1939 World's Fair. But CBS had already done some TV shows as early as 1931, featuring Kate Smith and George Gershwin, although that was using an older TV system. And General Electric, on the station that became WRGB Schenectady, is credited with broadcasting the first TV drama, when it televised a community theater play in 1928. That was only a few years after WGY Radio got its commercial license.

So TV really wasn't that far behind radio. But WWII really slowed down the development of television. Lots of people were buying radios in the 1920s but it wasn't till 1950, or at least the late 40s, before some families had a TV in the home. My dad says he and his friends would go to a bar to watch sporting events on TV several years before his family had a TV of their own.

Actually, CBS had announced a week before that their sign-on time was going to be 2:30pm and NBC, 2:00pm. So even though NBC did sign on a half-hour earlier, the CBS sign-on time was not "before normal".

Wikipedia has another version of how NBC beat CBS on the air on July 1, 1941. It says CBS was having trouble getting on the air on that day...

>>>The NBC and CBS stations were licensed and instructed to sign on simultaneously on July 1 so that neither of the major broadcast companies could claim exclusively to be "first." However, WCBW did not manage to sign on the air until 2:30 p.m., one full hour after WNBT. As a result, WNBC inadvertently holds the distinction as the oldest continuously operating commercial television station in the United States.<<<

But then Wikipedia gets confused by saying WNBT started with the Star Spangled Banner at 1pm. So that would mean WNBC had a 90 minute head start on WCBS-TV.

It's Wikipedia, known for in many cases almost (but not quite) getting the facts straight. This is what happens when you create an encyclopedia that the users can edit if they think they know better than the facts.

You have no idea how many Wikipedia entries I have fixed for various radio stations and for defunct UHF stations. One entry I had to clean up had an "edit" from someone listing the titles of newscasts a station would have used if it hadn't gone dark. That's a fact?

The announcement of sign-on times was published in Broadcasting the last week of June, 1941. I base my statement on that and will not stand down for a Wikipedia quote.

Double Dare (the Goodson-Todman version) debuted on this date on CBS.

The big TV news on this date was on the front page: Six Million Dollar Man finds priceless corpse in amusement park.

Surprised to see Green Bay listings across the lake in the Ludington MI paper. Would the over-water path make fringe reception better than usual?

In the very early days of TV (prior to Michigan going EDT and WGTU signing on), Mason County may have been in the Green Bay market. Same with Manistee County to the north. Channels 2, 5, and 11 were carried on Charter in Ludington until early 2009. Milwaukee stations were dropped earlier. Manistee lost GB stations (and WZZM) in the early 1990s (Manistee and Ludington, although both served by Charter now, used to be served by different cable providers [Ludington came from Bresnan while Manistee and points north and east (Cadillac, Traverse City, etc.) came from Cable Michigan]). Also, for years, Ludington didn't have local ABC WGTU or any WB/CW affiliate on cable.

Note that all of these stations (except WGVC) have the exact same calls nearly 40 years later!
Another note is that a few Green Bay radio stations have had listeners on the Michigan side of Lake Michigan (most notably 99.7 Sturgeon Bay when it was Wild 99.7 in the mid 2000s)

Saturday, September 11, 1971

from the San Diego Union TV Week supplement

Note: Although the Union also listed the VHF's from Los Angeles plus KCET/28, I am only listing the San Diego stations here, because the font and size they chose is hard enough to read in the first place. They even listed KEYT/3 in Santa Barbara, which was viewable in much of the coastal region of San Diego County due to the signal path being a straight line over the Pacific Ocean.

Network programs are marked with a * based on simultaneous carriage by the L.A. network O&O station.

Just for the heck of it, NBC's baseball games that week were Cardinals at Cubs, with Gowdy and Kubek('A' game), or Pirates at Expos, with Jim Simpson and Sandy Koufax.('B' Game) In those days, every market saw the 'A' game, except for the cities whose were actually playing in it, so I would guess that game aired in SD that week.

That's certainly a good rationale for an educated guess. Maybe the games weren't set at press time and that's why the Union didn't list them.

I notice in the morning that CBS follows ET while ABC and NBC follow CT. This date was also the start of the new Saturday morning line-ups. Of note, 7 AM offering on XETV is absent (the Jerry Lewis cartoon from ABC). Was this an omission or was 7:30 when XETV started the day's operations?

Re ABC and NBC following a different time pattern: It was obviously a network decision since the airtimes are the same on channels 3, 4, and 7 from the northerly direction. Perhaps some kind of accommodation for MT stations? I'm guessing here.

Re XETV: It was the latter. XETV was not a 24/7 operation in 1973 and for reasons unknown to anyone had a 7:30am sign-on time seven days a week, as noted in the other schedule postings.

By the way, the Miss America pageant aired in San Diego at 7 p.m. Pacific Daylight Time! Yes, it was a national broadcast!

That choice of football game for ABC is real odd: Grambling and Morgan State are both traditionally black colleges and the only time those schools usually get national coverage is the Grambling/Southern game late in the season. Why was this game chosen?

I would suggest that you've asked 44 years too late to get an answer to that question.

This came up on 'The 506 Forums', a site that discusses sports on TV, past and present, a few years ago. A user going by the handle 'tvnut' said:

There were several reasons. First, it allowed ABC to burn off a Division I-AA requirement in the contract, hitting the entire country with a I-AA game early in the season. Second, it was Grambling, which had never been seen on national television (regionals, I'm not sure of), and that allowed Rooney Arledge, ABC's sports supremo, to tout that beforehand. Third, it was two black schools, which had traditionally been ignored on TV despite sending hundreds of players to the pros over the years (especially in the era when the SEC was white-only).

The game got the publicity Arledge expected, and, I'd guess, a large audience.

AFAIK, ABC did not televise that matchup again, and settled on more 'white schools' to fulfill that requirement for one lower-division game a year.

Nothing to do with MT stations, as they got the New York feed and did with it what they wanted to--or could--do. Which often meant a 6:00 MT start (8:00 ET).

Saturday morning network kidvid on the left coast feed began at 7:00 or 8:00 PT, depending on the network.

Apparently they used Division II or even III games to satisfy that requirement. I swore I remembered reading about ABC broadcasting a Division III game many years ago, and look what I just found. How ABC got snookered into such a requirement is, as KM Richards pointed out, probably lost to the ages.

Main reason why this game would have been aired is that "back in the day" most college football teams did not begin their season until the third week of September. The 11-game regular season schedule had been adopted only in the previous season, and there were still quite a few schools that still played only ten regular season games. HBCU's, then as now, were looking to promote their product any way that they could, even it meant moving a game between two Louisiana schools to New York City.

Forgive my ignorance, not being anything even remotely close to a sports junkie of any kind, but what's a "HBCU"?

Thank you, sir.

What is Rocky (the show at 3:30 PM on KCST)?

That's the way it was listed in the newspaper, but given the proximity to Uncle Waldo (obviously, a half-hour of Jay Ward cartoons under the syndicated umbrella title Uncle Waldo's Cartoon Show) at 3:00, I would presume it was a second half-hour of Jay Ward cartoons under the syndicated umbrella title Rocky and his Friends.

Retro: Milwaukee, Dec. 10-11, 1994

Milwaukee TV listings—December 10-11, 1994 (listings courtesy of the Milwaukee Sentinel)

Note: December 11th was the day that WITI (6), WCGV (24), and WDJT (58) made their affiliation changes; WITI from CBS to Fox, WCGV from Fox to independent (but would join UPN at its launch about a month later), and WDJT from indie to CBS.

Also, I omitted the following stations that were listed in the paper: WAR-43, W46AR (now WYTU-63), WJJA-49 (now WMLW), and Channel 55 (no call letters given, but it was pre-WPXE [Ion]). 43 and 49 were home shopping stations, while 46 was an Univision station (WYTU is currently affiliated with Telemundo); the Sentinel only listed these stations on the prime-time grid anyway. I also split the listings into two parts--VHF stations (4, 6, 10, 12), and the UHF's (18, 24, 30, 36, 58, 65)

The listings go from Saturday 5am to late Sunday/early Monday 2am

The only clearly foreign show I see is "Mork and Mindy". Were there any other non-Dutch shows on at the time?

I'm surprised to see the DDR channels carrying a relatively acceptable programming, with even some British films and American music.

DDR 2 usually aired a movie from the capitalist countries but of course there was censorship. But especially on holidays East Germans were in for a treat on TV. Even erotic shows were aired. A reason why man from the West would tune in to DDR 1

They kinda had to, since most of East Germany could easily get West German TV (and vice versa). East German programmers quickly realized non-stop propoganda would lose viewers, so they'd put on both foreign exports and general entertainment. Some East German programs (children's shows, vintage films, opera) actually got good response from critics and viewers in West Germany. Interestingly enough, the parts of East Germany that couldn't get Western TV were more dissatisfied with their lives than the rest of the country.

In the late 1980's it was even encouraged to form Central Antennas so that people around Dresden could receive ARD, ZDF and the commercial stations. Everyone except the really die-hard communists watched Western TV. On Rügen they had no West-German TV either but they could receive Fjernsynet and TV2 Bornholm from Denmark.

As good a place as any to ask: Eduardo, what are American shows that have been especially popular in Argentina? I ask because one time I got an Argentinian magazine on EBay. The subject? One of the actresses from "Eight is Enough" and her newborn daughter.

Interesting that in 1992, TV in Buenos Aires was still showing the Three Stooges and Get Smart. There is a lot of news, which is good. Is ATC 24 a 24 hour cable news channel and ATC 7 (over the air) simply simulcasts several newscasts? I've seen that done in other countries. And for a while, U.S. stations were running CNN Headline News, especially overnight, to add some news to their schedules.

I also saw that Channel 11 calls itself "Telefe," which I thought might be owned and programmed by the Catholic Church, since fe is faith in Spanish. Channel 11 in San Juan, Puerto Rico, is owned by the Church and runs a mix of religious shows and family entertainment. But this channel seems to run all general interest programs, despite the name.

Also interesting that Channel 7 runs Italian shows from 3 to 6am. I know Buenos Aires has a large Italian population. And this publication even lists each channel's "test pattern" before the channel signs on for the day.

As good a place as any to ask: Eduardo, what are American shows that have been especially popular in Argentina? I ask because one time I got an Argentinian magazine on EBay. The subject? One of the actresses from "Eight is Enough" and her newborn daughter.

The most everlasting American shows in Argentina are, without doubt, The Simpsons, Three Stooges, ALF, The Nanny, Get Smart and Zorro.

The Simpsons is currently the only American show of which new episodes are premiered on OTA TV (but most people prefer to watch those on FOX anyways), while Zorro was shown weekdays on Channel 13 for more than a decade until two months ago.

Interesting that in 1992, TV in Buenos Aires was still showing the Three Stooges and Get Smart. There is a lot of news, which is good. Is ATC 24 a 24 hour cable news channel and ATC 7 (over the air) simply simulcasts several newscasts? I've seen that done in other countries. And for a while, U.S. stations were running CNN Headline News, especially overnight, to add some news to their schedules.

I also saw that Channel 11 calls itself "Telefe," which I thought might be owned and programmed by the Catholic Church, since fe is faith in Spanish. Channel 11 in San Juan, Puerto Rico, is owned by the Church and runs a mix of religious shows and family entertainment. But this channel seems to run all general interest programs, despite the name.

Also interesting that Channel 7 runs Italian shows from 3 to 6am. I know Buenos Aires has a large Italian population. And this publication even lists each channel's "test pattern" before the channel signs on for the day.

Curiously, The Three Stooges still run on Buenos Aires TV: weekdays at 6:30 AM on América (channel 2). ATC 24 was just the name for ATC news programmes, now known as Visión Siete.

The name Telefe actually means Televisión Federal, and the station was owned by Editorial Atlántida since 1990 until the late 90s when it was bought by Telefónica, a Spanish phone company.

A German game show in Argentina? Dubbed or in German?

Dubbed in Spanish (in Venezuela, I think).

In 1990 TeleMatch was already ancient. I'm from 1978 and I never heard of it...

Telematch was the name used to sell the programme internationally. I don't know its German name but here's a link to Deutsche Welle rights-selling flyer if you're interested, maybe you recognize the programme: <http://www.dw.com/popups/pdf/29687835/telematch.pdf>

And I guess Tinelli stole the name for Videomatch and then Showmatch when he switched channels.

It's curious because Videomatch already existed in 1991! But it was only Monday to Friday (it was Monday to Sunday in 1990). I don't know if they were uh, "inspired" on Telematch but one cannot unsee the similarities.

It's odd seeing He-Man and She-Ra in primetime :P Tele 5 was owned by Silvio Berlusconi, right?

Old Tele 5 was indeed owned by Silvio Berlusconi. It aired from 1988 to 1992. Tele 5 returned to the screen in 2002 but is now not owned by Berlusconi. It is now owned by Tele München Gruppe. A co-owner of old Tele 5.

Excellent schedule, you even bothered to include the English TV schedules! Were they received in the Netherlands by cable?

In the West it was possible to receive BBC, Anglia, TV South and Channel 4 by cable. In the East it was not possible until 1990. By then RTL Veronique and RTL+ had replaced the commercial broadcasters from the UK. In the Southwest you could easily receive TF1 and Antenne 2 by aerial and cable.

65 Judge Judy

51 likely aired Wheel and Jeopardy so it would be cleared in Gainesville, as WESH served as the NBC affiliate for that area and WJXT from Jacksonville was the CBS affiliate (and probably didn't have Wheel and Jeopardy in Jacksonville)

The reason why those PBS stations had their start times off was probably because it was during a pledge drive.

In kids programming...isn't that nice. At least they could have just done it during nighttime programming.

How did Ch. 62 manage to run "CBS Sunday Morning" and "Face the Nation" at 8 and 9:30 AM ET, respectively? "CBS Sunday Morning" isn't fed until 9 AM ET. I've never known there to be an early feed of those shows for the Eastern Time Zone.

Whoops there was a mistake in the schedule, I'll correct this...

WGPR 62 - CBS Detroit

8:00 am - News'thy

8:30 am - Evangel Temple

9:00 am - CBS Sunday Morning

10:30 am - Face the Nation

WJBK did the same thing that our WAGA (Atlanta) did back then--black out the entire CBS Saturday morning schedule up to their switch to Fox.

One odd thing: WDIV aired WCW wrestling... and on Saturday morning? Seems out of place for a Big Three affiliate, and an unusual time slot, too. I always knew that TBS and TNT carried WCW programs until the promotion folded, but I had no idea that WCW was even syndicated to local broadcast stations other than what was then WTBS.

NWA/WCW aired on WPIX(pre WB / CW) ch. 11 from 1987-91, then moved to WCBS (CBS) ch. 2 late Saturday nights / Sunday mornings 12:35am from 1991-97, then moved to WWOR (UPN) ch. 9 airing on Sunday's at noon from 1997-2000 then ending up at midnight on WLNY (Indy) ch. 55 until the WWE bought WCW in March 2001.

Also for a brief time WNBC (NBC) ch. 4 aired NWA Worldwide in the spring/summer 1990.

I recently looked at some '80s Detroit/Toledo listings, and WJBK carried WWF wrestling Saturdays at 11am for a number of years, bumping-off the final two hours of CBS' Saturday morning lineup. Some of those shows either aired the next week on delay or not cleared at all.

I can't remember when WCW started offering syndicated shows, although it may have been not long after the ownership transition from the Crockett family to Turner Broadcasting. I do remember back to at least 1992 that WCW was airing a syndicated show; KCAL here in Los Angeles carried WCW on Saturday mornings for a couple of years until the shows moved elsewhere or were cancelled. WCW Worldwide (their last syndicated show before they folded) aired here on KTTV Saturday afternoons at 4pm.

Television seemed very high-brow and educational back then. It's a shame there wasn't any late night or morning programming.

On Sunday TV was indeed very educational and highbrow. However on Friday and Saturday there was more room for entertainment. This is BTW typical for Northern Europe. In Scandinavia and Germany you would have the same.

In the House on WWOR

What time did "In the House" usually air on Weekends on UPN 9?

Then July 31, 2001 was a end of a era as WWOR became WNYW Fox 5 2.0.

What you're trying to tell me was that WWOR became a sister station to WNYW. Thus creating a duopoly between those two stations.

WHAT?! No listings for Channels 25, 31, 41 or 47? Surely, we should have known what they were broadcasting that date!

And don't forget about 13, 21, 50, 55 and 68.

"The Man with Two Brains." [1983] When brilliant brain surgeon Dr. Michael Hfuhruhurr (Steve Martin) accidentally hits gold-digger Dolores Benedict (Kathleen Turner) with his car, he takes it upon himself to save her life using his own surgical technique. The two are soon married, but no sooner are the rings on their fingers than the marriage begins to fall apart. While honeymooning in Vienna, Hfuhruhurr is introduced to reclusive scientist Dr. Alfred Necessiter (David Warner), who practices some rather unorthodox procedures.

24 Benny Goodman's Greatest Hits

In 1921, 12-year-old Benny Goodman showed up on a Mississippi riverboat, clarinet in hand, anxious to play in a small jazz band led by the legendary Bix Belderbecke. "Go away, boy", Bekderbecke reportedly said, "and don't mess around with the instruments." But Goodman did much more than mess around: he wowed Belderbecke with the charm and musicianship that were to become his trademarks. Those qualities are recalled here in clips of some prime Goodman performances, and are also re-created in renditions of his standards by Patti Page ["Goody, Goody"], Lionel Hampton ["Air Mail Special," "Flying Home"]; and Grammy-award winning clarinetist Richard Stoltzman ["Don't Be That Way," "Memories of You."]

Hey crainbebo/VHSgoodiesWA, can you also post Orlando for

Sunday, August 17, 1997

and

Monday, August 18, 1997?

Been really busy (especially with all of the new material I've acquired from Texas and are putting on my channel), but will post Sunday listings soon.

"Little Darlings" (12 Midnight, ch. 44) was partially filmed in our city of Atlanta. The scene of Kristy McNichol's character coming off the bus to greet her mom was filmed in the parking lot behind what was the Atlanta Journal-Constitution building.
